

SEPTEMBER 2019 MEMBERSHIP IMPACT REPORT

A Report from American Legion National Headquarters

VOICES

"About 200,000 veterans enter the civilian workforce each year, and statistics show that only one in four have the credentials needed for the best jobs. Others are forced to retrain, requalify, or in the worst-case scenario, start over, because the civilian system doesn't understand the military system. We don't speak a common language when it comes to skills."

- Lumina Foundation CEO Jamie Merisotis, speaking at The American Legion National Credentialing Summit Aug. 28 in Indianapolis

CENTENNIAL MOMENT

Just six months after it was conceived in Paris, France, The American Legion received its federal charter on Sept. 16, 1919, following House legislation that passed Aug. 27, 1919, and a Senate measure one week later.

The federal charter authorized the as-yet unincorporated organization in 1919 to proceed to the adoption of a constitution and bylaws, elect officers “and do all other things necessary” as outlined in U.S. Code, Title 36, Chapters 41-50. Under Chapter 43, “Purposes of corporation,” much of the language is borrowed from the original draft Preamble to The American Legion Constitution with some notable deviations, such as “to promote peace and good will among the peoples of the United States and all the nations of the earth” and “to cement the ties and comradeship born of service.”

The original charter outlined the powers and authority of the organization, membership criteria, naming rights, exclusivity to manufacture and use The American Legion emblem, and a requirement that “the organization shall be nonpolitical and, as an organization, shall not promote the candidacy of any person seeking public office.”
