INTRODUCTION

This summary of active and pertinent Americanism resolutions is intended to provide an easy reference regarding many of the programs and positions of The American Legion. It contains resolutions that became mandates of The American Legion after first being considered and adopted by the National Americanism Commission and subsequent adoption by either The American Legion's National Convention or The American Legion's National Executive Committee.

This publication is intended to focus only on selected resolutions, specifically, those subjects with public and organizational interest. Only a brief summation of intent is included when referencing certain resolutions, particularly where technical or exact wording is not essential to the full understanding of the policy. Resolutions of a more technical nature are included with the text of the resolving clause or position statement printed verbatim.

Annual resolutions, sometimes referred to as "housekeeping" resolutions, are not included in this summary. These include resolutions awarding contracts, annual sites and dates of events and activities, and matters of a routine and administrative nature.

Resolutions adopted at National Conventions are shown with a "Nat'l Conv" as the point of origin. Those adopted by the National Executive Committee are shown as "NEC." The month and year of the resolution's adoption are noted on each description.

Resolutions that request specific legislation or action by the current Congress of the United States must be reiterated every two years in order to remain as current or active mandates of the organization. Reiteration typically occurs at National Convention on even numbered years. These resolutions are marked "LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTIONS" for ease of reference.

The complete text of all resolutions reflecting current policies and programs of The American Legion are available for download from the online digital archive at <https://archive.legion.org/>. Resolutions from 1919 to present are available through that digital archive.

DEFINITION OF AMERICANISM

“Resolved, That the definition of Americanism now recognized and utilized by The American Legion be amended to include the following definition of Americanism given by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities in House Report No. 2, dated January 3, 1939 (First Session, 76th Congress)

In order to determine what activities and propaganda are un-American, we must first define Americanism. No scientific definition will be attempted, but we will undertake to set forth in simple and understandable language what some of the chief principles of Americanism are. In the first place, Americanism is the recognition of the truth that the inherent and fundamental rights of man are derived from God, and not from governments, societies, dictators, kings or majorities. This basic principle of Americanism is of Independence, where our immortal forefathers said that all men are created equal and that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, chief among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. From this declaration and well established interpretations that have been put upon it from the beginning of the Republic down to the present moment, it is clear that Americanism recognizes the existence of a God and the all-important fact that the fundamental rights of man are derived from God and not from any other source.

Among these inalienable rights which are the gift of man from his Creator are: (1) Freedom to worship; (2) Freedom to work in such occupation as the experience, training, and qualifications of a man may enable him to secure and hold; (6) Freedom to enjoy the fruits of his work, which means the protection of property rights; (7) the right to pursue his happiness with the necessary implication that he does not harm or injure others in the pursuit of this happiness. Upon this basic principle, the whole structure of the American government was constructed. The system of checks and balances in the Constitution was wisely conceived and ingeniously constructed to provide every possible guaranty that every citizen of the United States would enjoy and retain his God-given rights.

First, the Federal Government was specifically enjoined from exercising any power that was not expressly or by necessary implication granted to it in the Constitution. Second, such powers as the Federal Government was authorized to wield were wisely distributed between the three great Departments, the executive, the legislative and the judicial. The essence of Americanism is therefore, class, religious and racial tolerance.

It should be emphasized in the strongest language possible that the maintenance of these three forms of tolerance is essential to the preservation of Americanism. They constitute the three great pillars upon which our Constitutional Republic rests, and if any one of these pillars is destroyed, the whole structure of the American system of government will crumble to the earth. Therefore, the man who advocates class hatred is plainly un-American even if he professes racial and religious tolerance. The converse of the proposition is equally true. It is un-American to hate one's neighbor who has more of this world's material goods as it is to hate him because he was born into another race or worships God according to a different faith.

The American Government was established to guarantee the enjoyment of these fundamental rights. It, therefore, follows that in America, the government is the servant of the people. The rights of the people are protected through laws and their strict enforcement. For this reason, law and order are essential to the preservation of Americanism while lawlessness and violence are distinctly un-American.

Americanism means the recognition of the God-given rights of man and the protection of those rights under the Constitution through the instrumentality of an independent Congress, an untrammelled judiciary, and a fair and impartial executive operating under the American system of checks and balances. Americanism likewise means the protection of an unorganized majority from an organized minority as well as the protection of a helpless minority from and in consideration of a helpless minority from and inconsiderate and thoughtless majority.

The characteristic which distinguishes our Republic from the dictatorships of the world is not majority rule, but the treatment of minorities. Dictatorships muster huge majorities at the polls, through intimidation and high-powered government propaganda, but these majorities are used for ruthless tyranny over minorities. The majority rule of the American form of government is distinguished by its recognition of certain rights of minorities which majorities cannot alienate.

All of these definitions of Americanism are based upon the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution.” (Res. 105, Nat'l Conv, October 1962)

CREATION OF NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL AND NATIONAL AMERICANISM COUNCIL

Summary: The American Legion abolished the membership of the National Security Training Committee and it became the National Security Council. The National Americanism Council was also created with a purpose to propagate an interest in and a furtherance of the principles of Americanism as advocated by The American Legion and to serve as a medium of disseminating an understanding of these principles throughout the nation using the agencies of the departments and posts of The American Legion and its affiliated bodies; and in association with other patriotic organizations of like mind. The Council shall consist of a Chairman, such Vice Chairmen as may be required, and such general members as may be appointed by the National Commander. At its Fall Meeting each year, the National Executive Committee shall appoint, upon nomination by the National Commander, the Chairman and the Vice Chairmen of the Council to serve in such capacity for one year. The Council shall not form an Executive Section nor shall it be called into general meeting at National expense. The Chairman of the National Americanism Council is an ex-officio member of the National Americanism Commission. (Res. 62, NEC, May 1962 and Res. 3, Pre-NEC, October 1962)
